THE LISTENING POST

There is something pathetic to me in attending a public sale. In a majority of cases such sales follow death and the breaking up of a family. To see careless hands pick up the things which had once been treasured by the original owner; to hear careless voices bid a certain sum and take it always appears to be a sort of tragedy, although many times it may be that the price paid is more than the real value. Naturally one cannot expect a professional auctioneer to have any sentiment about inanimate possessions, but still the thought persists that the original owner would not be pleased at the usual procedure of a public sale.

I saw a sale the other day which, while not strictly a sale of personal belongings, still brought such thoughts to me. Under court order two buildings and the equipment of a moving picture show were sold in order to make settlements with creditors as far as possible. The original owner died some time ago, and his affairs were in a tangled state. It was necessary to hold this sale in order to meet the obligations of the original owner. There was nothing wrong with the sale and it was the only course to pursue in order to reach some semblance of order.

I stood in the lobby of the picture show and watched the crowd gather. It was a dingy place. For some time it had had no care and the entire building was badly run down. It was a depressing place through and through, and because of the fact that I knew the man who had built the business and knew something of his efforts I kept remembering earlier years. That man came here probably on a shoestring and opened the first moving picture show in Fulton about 35 years ago. He cashed in on the new industry for a long, long time, and at one time was probably quite wealthy. He operated the small picture show for a time and finally bought the building where I stood the other day. It was a big thing then, and for a time it was probably the finest moving picture house in this section of country. That man worked hard. That I know. He and his wife both worked hard, putting in long hours and earning everything they made.

For a long time he seemed to make quite a lot of money, but finally the breaks began to go against him. Knowing little of the art of making money I do not know just why these breaks turned against him. I only know that for a time he made money, and then later it seemed everything he touched lost money for him. Some say he held on too long to some of his property; other ascribe different reasons. I do not know, for I had few close contacts with the man in a business way. The time finally came when it seemed that all his property was under mortgage and he had a difficult time in financing these obligations. Then came a serious accident which kept him from being able to work for a long time, and other reverses, and then death.

This sale was the end of the dream he had for so many years. All his property had to be sold in order to meet the various obligations, and it is doubtful if the prices paid met all. I thought as I listened to the bidding that a man's day is soon over. He works and worries year after year, striving for security, for property and more property, and then stranger hands and stranger tongues are called on to dispose of all that a man has worked for. I have an idea that a majority of business men hope that their enterprises may continue after they have gone, but in many cases a business ceases when its original owner dies. In this particular case this was strikingly true. I had seen that dingy lobby when it was clean with new paint, shining with lights, warm with the presence of people—a place of joy and

UNION CHURCH WILL OBSERVE 100th ANNIVERSARY

On Sunday morning, November 15th, the members and friends of the Union Cumberland Presbyterian Church, located a quarter of a mile off Highway 94, will gather to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the Church in an All-Day meeting.

The Rev. D. W. Folks, who served the Church as pastor for more than seventeen years, will deliver the morning sermon. A basket dinner will be served. In the afternoon, T. R. Bellew, will call the roll of the membership and a history of the church will be given by Clemons Lawson. Clarence Reed will give a short talk on "Why the Church was built on its present location."

AMERICAN LEGION ENJOYS BASKET DINNER AT CABIN

Members of the American Legion, with many members of the Auxiliary, enjoyed a basket dinner at the Legions Cabin last night, observing Armistice Day. The program was largely informal, with the dinner served buffet style, and with many of those present joining in singing many of the old-time songs of the first World War.

Rev. L. P. Turnbow, pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, was the speaker and delivered a challenging message under the subject of "Making the World Safe." Rev. Turnbow spoke of the peace which we are all hoping for and gave his ideas on how this peace must be attained. "Ambition, anger, pride and greed must be abolished before universal and lasting peace can ever be attained," he declared. "The only true peace, the peace which will endure, can only come through Christ."

CLAUDIS HERRING DIES IN HOPKINSVILLE

Claudis Herring, 79, former resident of Fulton county, passed away yesterday afternoon in the Western State hospital in Hopkinsville, following a long illness. Funeral and burial will be in Hopkinsville today.

He is survived by several nephews and nieces here, George Harris Herring, Bill Herring, Charlie Herring, Marcus Herring, Bob Herring of near Paducah, Tobe Herring of Florida, Mrs. Nola Kimbro, Mrs. Lube Howell, Mrs. Mary Frances Heath of Mayfield and Mrs. Will Morris.

Holland Says Earlier Invasion Would Have Cost G. O. P. Seats

Washington. — Representative Holland (D., Penn.), asserted in the House today, over the objecting shouts of several members, that had the North African campaign occurred before election day, many Republicans "would never have been elected."

Holland said "there should be some red faces" now in the House and in editorial rooms of newspapers which had been critical of the conduct of the war.

"The critics of the President have their answer," he said, in the well-prepared invasion of French North Africa. "The House will harbor many such critics in the days to come," by virtue of last Tuesday's Washington. — Destruction of 12 Japanese planes by aerial attacks in the North and South Pacific was announced by the Navy today in a communique which also reported that American troops on Guadalcanal Islands in the Solomons were conducting "offensive operations" on both their eastern and western flanks.

Damaging of two enemy cargo vessels by aerial bombardment also was announced.

There was no explanation of the meaning of "offensive operations" and it was not clear whether fighting had once more broken out between the main Japanese and American forces to the west of Guadalcanal airfield, or whether it was merely meant that an advance had been made with little or no opposition.

On both flanks the ground operations were supported by United States Army planes. The action to the eastward of the American positions presumably was a continuation of the advance under way in that sector for several days, with the apparent purpose of bottling up Japanese forces recently landed there.

Seven of the 12 planes destroyed were float-type Zeros caught on Holtz Bay, Attu Island Monday (Washington time). The Japanese abandoned that Aleutian outpost in mid-September, and a naval spokesman said that the reconnaissance which disclosed the presence of the Zeros disclosed no other sign of enemy activity there. It was presumed, therefore, that the Japanese had made no attempt to reoccupy the island.

The two enemy cargo vessels were caught at Kiska, the foe's sole remaining Aleutian base, also on Monday. One of the Army planes which damaged them was itself damaged by enemy anti-aircraft fire, but managed to return to its base.

Steak Eaters Get New Cut As Beef Allowance Is Lowered

Washington. — If you bought three steaks a month last year, you're now entitled to only two and the extra one goes to the Armed Forces or to our Allies abroad.

That's the edict of the Office of Price Administration under terms of a new cut in civilian beef allowances effective immediately to make certain the men fighting this war "have all the meat they require."

Must Keep Quotas
Deputy Administrator Paul M. O'Leary announced the order reducing by a further 10 per cent the amount on the market for civilians in the October 1-December 31 quarter. This brought deliveries down to 70 per cent of the amount sold in the same quarter of 1941.

9,700,000 MEN WILL BE UNDER ARMS NEXT YEAR

Roosevelt Gives Figures Planned For 1943

Washington, President Roosevelt said today the United States planned to have roughly 9,700,000 men in the armed services by the end of the calendar year of 1943.

By January 1, 1944, the President told a press conference, the Army is expected to augment its forces from an existing 4,500,000 to around 7,500,000; the Navy to increase from its present 1,000,000 to around 1,500,000, and the Marine Corps and Coast Guard to increase from 400,000 to about 700,000.

The President ended a discussion of manpower needs when asked whether it was planned to transfer the Selective Service System from the War Department to the War Manpower Commission as recommended by the manpower commission's management-labor committee.

Mr. Roosevelt said that was all part of the manpower question and that while there was no immediate emergency something undoubtedly must be done within the next two or three weeks.

Roughly, he said, the nation had to find four or five million more people—the best manhood for the fighting forces—and also men must be found to take care of the food problem and industrial production, which has not reached its peak.

U. S. WON'T TAKE OVER ROADS EASTMAN SAYS

New York. — Joseph B. Eastman, Director of the Office of Defense Transportation, said today that co-operation between the Government and railroads, along with other carriers, was progressing favorably and that there was no intention on the part of the Government to take over railroads as in the World War.

"The present co-operative arrangement is, I believe, working well," Eastman said, "and certainly it is receiving loyal and whole-hearted support from both the carriers and the shippers of the country."

"No one could wish for better co-operation than I have received from both these sources, and the spirit and morale are at very high levels."

VICHY CONSULATE IN NEW YORK RAIDED

New York. — Government agents today raided the French consulate on Fifth Avenue and took possession of the Vichy French offices.

The consulate's telephones were disconnected by the raiders and the doors were barred.

At the same time, the O. P. A. forbade slaughterers from exceeding their quotas by 10 per cent in any quarter with the privilege of chopping that amount off the quota for the following period. Those who already have exceeded the 70 per cent figure for this quarter must stop deliveries for civilian use for the remainder of the year.

W. P. B. Tells Shortage
Quotas for veal, 100 per cent of 1941 deliveries, lamb and mutton, 95 per cent, and pork, 75 per cent, were left unchanged.

The action followed a recommendation from the War Production Board's foods requirements committee which said military and lend-lease authorities had been unable to obtain the required amount of beef.

PASTORS URGE SLOT MACHINES BE EXPOSED

Asks Citizens To Supply Johnson With Data

Frankfort, Ky. — Advice that Campbell County citizens furnish Governor Johnson with a list of slot machines being operated there and formally request him to take action was given the Northern Kentucky Baptist Pastors' Conference by Assistant Attorney General Jesse K. Lewis today.

Lewis' letter went to the Rev. John E. Huss of Covington, conference secretary, who wrote that the organization wanted to know the best way to proceed.

Accuse Local Officers
Huss also declared local law enforcement officers knew the location of the machines, that the State Revenue Department had a list of them and that a list had been published locally.

Lewis reiterated his recent statement that if local authorities declined to break up slot machine operations the Chief Executive had power to remove the officers and to use the militia to confiscate illegally operated devices.

Lewis also reiterated his assertion that the machines should be turned into war metal scrap.

CARL SONS DIES YESTERDAY AFTERNOON

Carl Sons, 44, died yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock at the home of his brother, Wilson Sons, in Riceville, after a lingering illness. Funeral services will be held this afternoon at one o'clock at the Riceville Baptist church, conducted by the Rev. Sammie Price of Clinton. Burial by Hornbeak Funeral Home was in the Dublin, Ky. cemetery.

He is a former employee of the Browder Milling Company.

570 NAZI SUBS CLASSED AS LOST, ALLIED CLAIMS SHOW

London. — A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, announced in the House of Commons today that the number of enemy submarines sunk, damaged or captured had increased to 570.

In disclosing the increased damage to Hitler's U-boat fleet, Alexander said "The enemy quite failed to apprehend that we had sufficient shipping tonnage available to carry out the operations of the last two days" — the landing of a strong American expeditionary force in North Africa.

REV. R. D. MARTIN EXTENDED CALL TO BAPTIST PULPIT HERE

The Pulpit Committee of the First Baptist church held a called meeting at the church last night and at this meeting the Rev. R. D. Martin, pastor of the Baptist church at Erlanger, Ky., was extended a call to the pulpit of the local church. Rev. Martin now has the invitation under consideration and is expected to accept and be in the local field by the first of January.

Rev. Martin has served as assistant pastor of the First Baptist church in Cincinnati, pastor of the Ninth Street Baptist church of Cincinnati, and has been pastor at Erlanger for the past fourteen years. At the present time he is District Governor of the 162nd District of Rotary International.

NEW TAXATION ON SIDETRACK

Treasury Puts Efforts On November Financing

Washington. — Temporarily sidetracking all talk of new taxation, Treasury Secretary Morgenthau today prepared to "get down to brass tacks" on the question of November financing—expected to equal at least the world's record total of $6,835,000,000 in "new money" which poured into Uncle Sam's war chest during October.

Chief question in Treasury corridors as Morgenthau met with executive committee members of the Federal Reserve System was whether the Secretary could make his "2 per cent war financing program" stick to bring in the big bulk of the November bill. The committee was expected to be flatly opposed to the program and prepared to demand a higher interest rate.

Delay Tax Talk

Morgenthau would not discuss possible additional taxation, declining to comment on the proposal of Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), earlier this week for a year's moratorium on new taxes.

Restaurants Are Given Exemption From Price Ceilings On Items

Washington. — The Office of Price Administration declared today that temporary price ceilings on butter, eggs, poultry and citrus fruits do not apply to sales by restaurants, hotels, or other establishments where food is prepared for sale and consumption on the premises.

Prices of these commodities were frozen on a temporary basis under an order issued October 3. O. P. A. announced today that, pending formulation of permanent regulations for these commodities, a number of the ordinary regulations applying to other commodities would be applied to the foods now under temporary decrees.

For instance, the temporary ceiling applies to sales made by farm co-operative, whether the co-operatives are acting for themselves or as agents for farmers.

However, direct sales by a farmer of commodities produced on his own farm are not regulated unless the purchaser is a consumer.

Sales to war and other governmental agencies are exempted.

The additional essential classifications and the number of jobs in each subject to superior claims for deferment were:

Production of rubber products, 31 key positions; production to apparel for the armed forces and work clothing, eight positions; production of finished lumber products, 19 positions. These included production of oars, matches, wood preservation activities, parts of aircraft, ships and other military equipment, and cork products such as life preservers, storage battery boxes and insulating material.

LARGE CROWDS ARE ATTENDING DAIRY MEETINGS

I. C. Swift's And Armour's Sponsoring Dairy-Poultry Meetings

Large crowds are attending the Dairy-Poultry meetings, being sponsored by the Illinois Central Agricultural Department, Swift & Company and Armour's, which are being held at the various towns in Western Kentucky and Tennessee. A total of 864 persons have attended the three-day sessions held so far and a great deal of interest has been shown.

Robert Shirer of Chicago, I. C. agricultural agent, is in charge of the meetings, which include colored moving pictures. The meeting this morning was held at the Clinton High school and this afternoon's at Fulham. A meeting for adults will be held tonight at the Clinton court house.

Friday morning, the meeting is at Chestnut Glade school, that afternoon at Palmersville School and at the Fair Exhibit building at Martin that night.

The show is being extended at the request of the Tennessee Cream Improvement Association for four days. At the conclusion of the meetings, every person between Wickliffe and Memphis will have had an opportunity of seeing the pictures.

THE PEOPLE BRING FEDERAL- ISM BACK

Anything produced at home for home consumption competes with articles of commerce to the extent that it takes the place of something which otherwise would have to be purchased. This has always been familiar to economic law and now it is recognized in constitutional law under the interstate commerce clause. On this ground, the Supreme Court says Roscoe C. Filburn, of Montgomery County, Ohio, is liable to the penalty of 49 cents a bushel on his 1940-41 wheat crop in excess of his quota allotment,
though not raised for sale.

Interstate commerce now reaches back to the planting and in a companion case, is said to start from the bottom of an oil well. Jurisdiction of the United States
hereforth may embrace any activity of a productive character.
Federalism in a new guise and for a new purpose, the protection of human instead of property rights.
The oil case from Texas concerned the wage-hour law enforcement, the wheat case enforcement of a farm co-operative agreement. The quota violated was voted by the farmers themselves; it was not an arbitrary edict but a democratic process which overtook the defendant. The quota system was introduced to implement co-operative policies. The aims of agricultural and labor organizations in the past have been frustrated by those who enjoyed the benefits but spurned
the means of obtaining them. Equality, therefore, is the essence of quotas and wage-hour laws.

But this extension of interstate commerce would make an old-time constitutional lawyer gasp as he looked back over an intervening

period of chaos to the original Federal system. The protection of interstate trade against the imposition of state barriers was one of the chief reasons for adopting the Constitution; property rights became its first consideration. That theory ultimately was carried to the length of nullifying the efforts of states to eradicate child labor and sweat shops. There was a time when the Supreme Court didn't regard the manufacture of sugar for export as an interstate commerce operation; now the raising of sugar cane and beets is identified with it.

Radical as this appears, it is not a departure from the trend of the court in recent years, nor has the construction of the Constitution under Marshall, Taney and their successors been a record of unswerving consistency except in its tendency to vary the trend. Our organic instrument is not like the laws of the Medes and Persians.
Only principle is undying. The personnel of the bench changes with the times. The court as an institution is simply giving back to Congress the powers the court took from it. Congress can repeal or modify the law, the court can reverse or modify its opinions, but the people are still all powerful.

You may delay a War Call

Every local telephone call you make is handled through the same telephone switchboards and lines that handle urgent war calls. This equipment has a definite capacity.
It can take care of only so many calls at a time. If more are made, some must wait. We can no longer expand our facilities because materials are more urgently needed
to equip our fighters.

Crowding telephone lines and switchboards with unnecessary calls may delay vital war calls—calls that must not wait. So we urge that you please use your telephone less so that war industries,

the armed forces and other war
agencies can use theirs more.
Make at least one-third fewer calls, and please be brief in all your telephone conversations. Ask members of your family and servants to do likewise.

The prompt handling of war
calls is of vital importance to all of us. With your help we can furnish better communication facilities for the business of winning the war.

SPORT TALK

I thought I would say nothing about this matter, but the fact is I grow amused over the Mayfield state of mind a lot of times and confess that I can never understand it. Right now the Cardinals are getting ready to run over the Fulton Bulldogs Friday night, and for some curious reason it seems to be the general belief there that they are going to replay the game which the Bulldogs won last year on the local field 19 to 6, in what sports writers like to call a tremendous upset. To my mind there was no upset whatever in that game. The best team won—and won hands down, without any argument. The score was 19 to 6, which sounds a bit close, but when it is recalled that two touchdowns were called back, and the further fact that Fulton rolled up a dozen first downs to Mayfield's three or four, it becomes apparent that the game was a rout.

Mayfield fans have always said that the Cardinals played far below their real strength, proving this by the fact that the following week they held Tilghman to a scoreless tie. Tilghman had whipped the Bulldogs 19 to 0 earlier in the season. Now I saw that Mayfield-Paducah game, and it is my opinion that the Bulldogs, playing as they did against Mayfield the week before, would have beaten Paducah and Mayfield on that day. Neither the Mayfield team nor the Tornado played any good football in the Thanksgiving game. The two teams slugged it out in mid-field, with no real power being exhibited by either team. Paducah had one scoring chance and threw it away by unintelligent quarterbacking, and the Cards never had any real scoring chance.

I saw Coach Giles' drill his team in preparation for the Mayfield game, and I do not believe that a coach ever gave as much or got as much from his boys as Giles did during that ten-day period. While it was not mentioned at the time, it will do no harm to reveal it now, and it shows how earnestly the boys worked for that game. Coach Giles did not order his boys out for Sunday afternoon preceding the Tuesday game, but gave a broad hint that if the boys wanted to give up their Sunday afternoon playing period they could find him at the football field. The entire squad showed up, and for a couple of hours ran through a lot of touch football and horseplay. The practice probably did not amount to much—but it did stop any tendency to break training or soften up over the crucial week-end period.

For ten days the squad worked until darkness had fallen and Coach Giles gave them about three brand-new plays. Hour after hour the boys lined up for these plays, and hour after hour they ran those plays until every man on the squad including the substitutes, knew them perfectly. The substitutes know they would have no chance of playing, barring accidents, but they worked just the same. The result was when the Bulldogs faced the Cardinals they believed they had a better team. The result proved it.

It was not a sub-par Cardinal team which played that day, despite Mayfield claims. It was a pretty good ball club up against the lightest team that ever faced Mayfield, and it had the boys and the weight and power to skill and coaching to give answer to all that Mayfield had. If the Cardinals had any overconfidence at the start it was battered out of them in the first minutes. The first shattering attack threw the Cards back on their heels and they never got back on their toes. Cunningly devised plays, perfectly executed, kept them back on their heels the rest of the afternoon.

The scoreless tie with Paducah the following week proved nothing. The team Coach Giles threw against Mayfield in the closing game last year could and would have beaten any team in West Kentucky, with the possible exception of Hopkinsville. It might have done that.
